SCHOLARSHIP TIPS

Scholarship season is just kicking off! Use the next few months wisely to increase your chances of earning free money for college. Oregongoestocollege.org gives the following tips for successful scholarship applications.

The Scholarship Essay:

1. Follow Directions!

This simple tip is the most important one – pay attention to what is being asked of you. Answer the question asked of you, keep within page or word limits, and pay attention to any special formatting requests.

2. Write Your Best.

For most applications, you'll only be submitting one or two written pieces. The people who read your applications assume that what they see is the best you can do. It's your job to make sure you prove them right! Your essays should be examples of your best writing. That means it's important to follow tip #3.

3. Proofread.

This is good practice no matter what you're writing, but you'll want to make sure you proofread these essays extra carefully. Better yet, have a friend or trusted adult proofread for you, too. You'd be surprised at the number of applicants who write that they really want to go to Oregon State University on their application to Linfield College! Thorough proofreading can prevent these simple mistakes.

4. Be Yourself.

Essays are an opportunity for the admissions and scholarship committees to learn about the parts of you and your experiences that aren't captured by the "numbers" (i.e. GPA and test scores). It's your opportunity to show them what's important to you and to let your personality shine through. For example, some students wonder if it's okay to write a humorous essay. The best advice we've heard about this is "Funny essays can be great to read, but if no one's ever told you you're funny, this isn't the time to try."

5. Remember You Have an Audience.

Most of the time you won't meet the person who is reading your application, so it can feel like you don't have an audience. It's important to remember that you do. While it's okay to write about the things that matter to you, it's always wise to consider that you don't know the politics, religion, or personal beliefs of the person who is reading your application. Choose a topic that interests you, but be careful not to offend.

CLEAN UP YOUR SOCIAL MEDIA & EMAIL ADDRESS—When applying to scholarships (and college) it is important to put your best self forward. Take down any inappropriate or immature photos and quotes on your social media accounts and use a professional email address.
